THE GOOD TIMES-ADVERTISING-THE LOU-ISVILLE JOURNAL. - The productions of the earth have never been more abundant than during the present season. Last year the crops were almost entirely cut off; in consequence of which great distress was felt, and bankruptcy threatened almost the whole country. It is astonishing that our merchants bore up so successfully under such heavy adversity. Very few of them succambed, and these but tempora-

A bright prospect is now before our mer chants, for undoubtedly the trade during the approaching fall will be better than it has been for many years. We are credibly informed that an unusually large stock of goods will be offered by them for sale, and that the strongest inducements will be held out to responsible customers. Persons throughout the West and South desirous of making purchases cannot possibly do better than to make application here.

And now a word or two for ourselves. Never before was there a time in all the twenty-five years of the life of the Louisville Journal when it had so large a circulation, weekly, tri-neckly, or daily, as it has now. Never before was there a time when it had so large an aggregate circulation by many thousands. In the old and fierce contests of the Whig and Democratic parties, its circulation far surpassed that of any other paper in the Western country, but even then it fell very much short of what it is now. Since the 1st of last month our weekly subscription list has increased more than three thousand five hundred, our daily more than one thousand four hundred, and our tri-weekly-we know not how much. Our daily accessions now are very rarely less than one hundred and fifty; and we have the strongest assurance that our increase during the next month will be not less than four thousand. Our daily and triweekly issues are largely circulated throughout the West, particularly in Kentucky. Indiana, and Tennessee, and the weekly is read by thousands in every section of the West and Southwest from Minnesota to Louisiana. Each of our issues very greatly surpasses that of any other paper in this part of the country.

We mention these things not by way of boasting of our success, but to let our friends understand, that, if they wish to make known their vocation or to inform the West and South what they have for sale, they will find our columns the best possible medium for their purposes. The fall trade will soon commence, and this is the time for the merchants to tell what merchandize they have to offer to their customers.

The editor of the Democrat risks another little allusion to his call at our counting-room the other day and his hurried departure upon house, at eighteen months. In some cases this business in the country as soon as informed that has been accepted. we would see him. He bitterly denies that he was frightened. Well, possibly he wasn't. Even the strongest symptoms may be fallacious. We didn't know his peculiarities. May be he naturally trembles. May be his voice is naturally husky and faltering. May be his face is raturally "pale as a smock." May be his fiery nair naturally stands on end. May be he is naturally a hard driver of horse-flesh whenever things begin to look a little critical.

Our neighbor undertakes to sneer at the idea of our ever having scared anybody. We don't think we ever tried to scare any one till he ker are out of danger. called on us the other day. "Now," thought we to ourself, "if we ever mean to frighten any human being, this is our opportunity." We tried the experiment, and the result is on record. If the game had been brag, we might say that we played it right skillfully. Our opponent tally. didn't venture to "show his hand;" he kept it in his pocket, though he no doubt held in it "a bragger and two bullets." Bullets were right thick about him, counting the one his Irish friends gave him. What a pity for some folks that pistols and lead cannot be used but by the aid scale. of nerves. Ah, how many Deringers and revolvers have lain utterly useless in breechespockets, dumb and harmless, for the want of that aid! By the way, a pistol was picked up in the street near our office shortly after our neighbor's flight, and, if it is his, he had better neighbor's flight, and, if it is his, he had better send for it. We couldn't be so cruel as to require him to call for it. In recovering one, he to New York, with a view to defraud the Insuquire him to call for it. In recovering one, he would probably drop two more.

Our neighbor concludes his little paragraph with the exclamation "Bah!" The sound is as natural to him as to any other sheep. His bleating wasn't at all needed to show the community what class of animals he belongs to. He is probably as bold as most of his species.

Two fellows went into the broker's office of Mr. Bowman at Cincinnati on Wednesday and knecked a boy down, who was the only person in attendance, Joubtless for the purpose of robbing the office. The boy, however, gave the alarm and the fellows took to their heels. One of them was arrested.

A Suggestion .- We find the following in the Baltimore Sun

An American city like Louisville, of some seventy thousand inhabitants, without a single military corps in regular organization. It is at variance with all idea of the American charac-

We know very well, that, notwithstanding the almost entire absence of any volunteer military companies in our city, there are hundreds and thousands of our best and oravest citizens willing and anxious to tender their services: but it is a matter of no little surprise that the "Legion," a corps provided with a very favorable charter and offering many inducements for the formation of volunteer companies, is allowed to languish as it does. There are many young men in our midst who need only the suggestion to set themselves to work to fill up the rank and file of the Louisville Legion. Indeed we have understood that a movement to this effect has already been

For some months past the Freesoil and anti-slavery papers have been circulating the following paragraph, asserting that it contains a sentiment once uttered by Kentucky's greatest statesman, Henry Ciay. It purports to be in the language used by him:

I repeat it, sir, I never can and never will, and no earthly power will make me vote directly or indirectly to spread slavery over any territory where it does not exist. Never while reason has a seat in my brain—never, while my heart sends the vital fluid through my brain-

We do not believe that Henry Clay ever used such language or ever uttered such a sentiment. We have carefully examined all the published speeches and addresses of that great man, and have industriously inquired of those who would probably remember if he had ever expressed himself in this manner, but we have been unable to find any authority for attributing to him expressions so inconsisient with all his acts and opinions either recorded or remembered.

BORING THE HOUSAG MOUNTAIN .- The Boston Journal says the firm of Edward W. Serrel & Co., the new contractors on the Troy and Greenfield Railroad, are pushing their work with much spirit. They "have by no means abandoned the idea of using mechanism on the main tunnel, but have a machine in progress at the Novelty Works in New York, of an improved construction, designed to open a drift way of eight feet in diameter in advance of the tunnel. The diminished size will render it more managable than the larger machine, and the workmen who follow it can easily enlarge the aperture, by splitting out the strata of slate, which are nearly perpendicular." A force of about 500 men are distributed along the line of work, and more are advertised for.

The N. Y. Journal of Commerce. of Friday evenilig, says:

The dividend now payable on the New York Central, is the largest ever paid for a single cor-poration since our recoilection. The transfer office in the banking house of Messrs. Duncan, Sherman, & Co., is thronged by the holders of coupons, and those seeking to transfer the stock. The amount paid out by them will be about $700,000.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MASTERS.

The river had only fallen an inch in the twen ty-four hours ending last evening. There were 5 feet 7 inches water in the canal. We had a slight fall of rain early yesterday morning, and during the day the weather was cloudy.

The Cumberland was falling on Tuesday with 4 feet water on the shoals.

The Rainbow is the packet for Handerson this evening. She starts punctually at the hour advertised. Her accommodations as well as her fare are unexceptionable, her speed is great, and her officers are well known for their uniform courtesy. We are indebted to her for a copy of the manifest.

The little steamer Gaz I, formerly belonging to Van Amburg's Menagerie, came down from Cincinnati yesterday morning, and went over the falls. She has been purchased by Capt. Lyon who will run her as a regular packet between Evansville and Henderson.

A new sternwheeler built at Ironton, also came down the river and departed for the Ar kansas, for which river she was built.

The Submarine, No. 6, is at work on the wreck of the Kentucky Home, and has removed 100 kers of nails and about 15 tons of dry goods from it. The freight has been forwarded to Cincinnati.

The boiler of the new steamer Home has passed inspection at Cincinnati.

The Fanny Bullitt is due from New Orleans this evening.

The following we find in the Cincinnati Commercial of yesterday:

Opinions of the Steamboat Inspectors in the Case of the Collision between the Steamers Telegraph No. 3 and Kentucky Home.—Messrs. Haldeman and Guthrie, local inspectors, have addressed a letter to S. B. W. McLean, Esq., collector of customs for this city, embodying ar account of the testimony taken in the matter of the collision between the steamers Telegraph No. 3 and Kentucky Home, on the night of the 30th July, in which five persons were killed or missing, and giving their opinion and decision in the case. The inspectors entered into the investigation of this matter without complaint from either party, the pilots of each boat declining to charge those on the other with neglect of duty or unskillfulness. They have examined sixty witnesses, have visited the place of accident and have given the whole affect the of accident, and have given the whole affair the most patient and thorough investigation possible, for which laborious action they merit the gratitude of the public. It is evident that they have made the protracted examination into th facts of the case, which was requisite to a clear understanding of all the circumstances, with the most assiduous energy and conscientious purpose. It appears that the cause of the accident was a misunderstanding in the signals, but the pilot rules do not justify a pilot in following a wrong signal. The opinion and decision which is voluminous, but with few if any superfluous words, concludes as follows:

It may not be out of place here to urge upon masters and owners of steamers the necessity of having a person constantly on the watch—men who are capable of noticing promptly any change in the position of the boat they are meeting. In nearly every case of collision coming before us, there was no one on the look-out on before us, there was no one on the look-out on one boat or the other to assist the pilots. In some instances we have known both boats to be without the watch on deck. In the present case there was no one on the hurricane deck of the steamer Telegraph No. 3 to assist the pilot. The captain of the Kentucky Home was on the hurricane deck at the time, and saw the dan-ger about the time his pilot first discovered it.

lowing a wrong signal. The opinion and decis-

There is, then, but one cause which produced this collision, and that is on the part of Mr. William Williamson, the pilot of the Kentucky Home, in answering what he supposed to be a signal from the Telegraph No. 3, and acting accordingly, when he knew it was an unusual or wrong signal. All the consequences—such as placing himself out of his proper place, the near approach of the boats to a collision before discovery, and the collision itself-proceed from and are subject to this error; and, for this einattention to the duties of his station" (it being an error of judgment, wherein others, no doubt would have done the same thing, under the same circumstances), and considering the loss of time and expense he has been at, attending to this investigation, we suspend his license to act as a licensed pilot for thirty days from this

The United States Steamship Merrimac .- We learn that the boilers and machinery of this ship, being constructed at the Charleston (Mass.) navy-yard, are all on board and being placed in position. The vessel will be ready to go to sea as early as the latter part of October.

The Ships being Constructed .- It is thought at the Navy Department that the existence of the yellow fever at Norfolk and Portsmouth, with the attending circumstances, must necessarily delay the final completion of all the U. S. ships being constructed there at least six months.

THE author of this interesting American novel is among in the most intellectual of living writers. It required the genius of the author to have grayed, with such extraordinary forms, the seenes and of counts are as thought which here are move. No other writer could make thrown as strong an individual life into place and locality. Her passionate fearlies nature, her wild warm heart, are transfused into the mage world she has created, with such an intense earnestness, when no one can enter without yielding to the irresistible fascination of her powers. The book is a thrilling transcript of andounted experience. The characters introduced into her work are flesh and blood realities. These graphic life revelations have created a profound literary sensation not equaled by any other production since the appearance of the about than any other novel of our times.'

GREAT IMPORTATION OF CATTLE INTO KY. Robert A. Alexander, of Woodford, Ky., has written a long and most interesting letter to the Ohio Farmer, giving an account of a recent visit to all the short-horn herds of England .-From it we learn that before leaving England Mr. A. shipped for this country 48 head of the best of short-horns and 22 South Down sheep. The most of these are destined for his fine farm in Kentucky. Mr. Alexander is the largest importer of short-horn cattle in America. Every year he spends several months in England to attend the Local and National Fairs, and find the best animals, which he purchases, no matter at how great cost.

A man named James Leahey w s/killed at St. Louis on Monday at a liquor saloon by its proprietor. Leahey was the first assailant. In the same city and on the same night, a man named Bliss killed Victor Ahrahams. Bliss surrendered himself.

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Courier and Enquirer.] WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.

Mr. Browne, manager of the Agricultural division of the Patent office, will sail for Europe in the steamer of the 5th September. The ob-ject of this visit is the collection of seeds, and the procuring of information upon several agricultural interests successfully prosecuted in Europe, but hitherto entirely neglected here, though believed to be well adapted to our soil and climate. Among these pursuits is the planting of sea-cane, for the protection of the shore against the washing of the sea. It has been carried to great perfection in Holland, where, to use Dryden's figure, the country has been fished up from the sea. There are portions of the United States which would derive the high-seat advantage from the successful ulture of this. est advantage from the successful culture of this Attempts have heretofore been made to introduce it, which have failed principally from the want of information on the methods pursued. A great benefit would be conferred upon the country should this renewed effort, under the auspices of the government, succeed.

Mr. Browne's tour will be extended to Po land, and it will occupy some 10 or 12 weeks. Already an agricultural department has been established by the authority of the Executive, while the subject has been for years under earnest deliberation in Congress. The appropriations have rapidly swelled in amount, and a large item for deficiencies will be presented at the next session, and duly responded to.

The elections for members of the next House are now so nearly complete, that we can discern the state of parties, so far as can be learned from their associations and recognized public posi-tion. The States which have yet to elect are Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, and Maryland.

The House will be a congregation of factions. There will be Wnigs and Democrats, Know-Nothings, Freesoilers, Abolitionists, Hardshells, Administration men and Softs and Independents and Dependents, the latter much more numerous than their opposites. The regular administration force will be 75; the united op-position 159. But there is no possibility of a union which will combine more than a barmajority of the whole House — namely 118 members. Upon the question of sustaining the Nebraska law, the best calculation gives the result of ayes 103, noes 131—majority 28. But as the Senate stands ready to veto any such movement of the House, the passage of a bill of repeal would be only a preliminary proceeding to a long and fierce contest between the representatives of the people and the Executive with its patronage, and the Senate with its long terms.

As no party will be able to command a majority, the organization of the House must de-pority, the organization of the House must depend wholly upon success in combination, and it need excite no surprise if a struggle should occur as long and exciting as that which convulsed the country in 1849 and '50.

We hear, with a modified interest, that Mr. Dodge, General of Militia, has made renewed overtures for the purchase of Cuba. This I think not at all improbable. Cuban annexation is too good a card to be relinquished merely because the game has been planted out. It is a hear that the care has been planted out. cause the game has been played out. It is to he used in managing the more nery Southern mem-bers through the stormy scenes of the next Congress, and in the dying hours of the Administra-tion. Though the whole subject is indefinitely postponed, many a patriot will find it convenient to mouth over it as a thing to be speedily accomplished.

"The enterprise of African colonization," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "in whatever point it is viewed, is in fact full of interest, and deserving of attention. Whether as politicians, philanthropists, or Christians, the cause ought to receive their assistance, as its object is to abolish the slave trade, to civilize Africa by avery practicable means and to extend Chrise. abolish the slave trade, to civilize Africa by every practicable means, and to extend Christianity. To the philanthropist, the history of the Republic of Liberia is replete with interest. Acquired by purchase, guaranteed by treaty, and governed hy justice, it shows the bright result in increased prosperity in itself, and in a rapid extension of friendly relations with the natives. To the Christian, it gives, in the republic, an evidence of the successful, established and beneficial effects of Cb. istianity, and it points out the means by which that great blessing may be extended to the thousands and millions of a mighty continent. To the politician, it affords evidence of a favorable experiment, which proves that the Africans, if treated with justice, and placed in a situation in which they are free to act, not only govern themselves, but are free to act, not only govern themselves, but extend friendly relations with those by whom they are surrouded. It also points out a means which, if steadily pursued, will destroy the foreign slave trade.

We are always delighted to hear from ur charming correspondent Dora, whether she writes from Bardstown or Chicago:

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin:

CHICAGO, August, '55. GENTLEMEN: After a month of pleasant va-garies and delightful loiterings in the dear fami-liar places of my Kentucky home, I am again in this husy, "progressive" metropolis. I am almost provoked at the wondrous changes in my absence, indignant at the magic improvement of a few weeks. It is quite another city to the home I left, and I shall have to learn it again But the lake, the beautiful silvery lake is still the same, and the waves still chant their rich, deep melodies, and what sweeter welcome, than this wailing, winning music! I love this hil-lowy lake, with its glossy, crystal surface, and the soft, half-sad murmurings of the waves. Sparkling and basking in the glory and splen-dor of the sun-rise, it is a scene of brightness that charms more each view. But it is in the golden twilight-hour, that I love to wander to the lake-shore—the hour when the whole sheet of water is "paved with gleams of sun-set and of moon-rise.

The sunlight fading away, but crimsoning and irradiating the sky in the west, a pale moon, with the bright evening star in its lustrous beauty, what splendor reflected in this grand mirror! And then the wild, sweet music of the waves, bringing now happy, glad thoughts, now sad, tearful memories. Oh! I love the lake-shore. The brightest, loveliest, and balmest evening of this week we drove on the celightful plank-road to the suburban resithe celightful plank-road to the suburban residence of a genuine, chivalric Kentucky gentle-man, Col. H. What pleasant, charming faces and what a pretty, cheerful home! The hand-some mother, elegant and dignified, yet dispen-sing hospitalities with the sweetest, gentlest kindness; the dark-eyed daughter, graceful and lovely; the good Kentucky-loyal Colonel himself—it was as bright and happy a tableaux vi-vant as one could wish to see And then, too, it made me think of that ever dear distant home, where the sweet spirits of love and cheerfulness and hospitality preside over the family circle. Chance glimpses of pure home-happiness like this made us sigh for some sweet little abode of our own. So one evening, into our usual promenade, we ventured in an "intelligence office" to seek for a "house to rent." The agent, with more than usual volubility, considerably height-ened by foreign accent, told of a love of a cottage, with a green yard and spacious garden, and roses and vines all around, just a pleasant walk for "shopping"—house quite new—owner going further West—resolved to sell at a sacrifice-indeed, the price a mere nominal thing too small to be mentioned—would suit us exactly. Alfured by the "magnificent inystery" of enough, to be sure, to walk, but then a drive here is so delightful.

Next morning, very cold, but nothing daunted by chilly winds and clouded skies, we started en famille in a nondescript vehicle for our prospective residence. Such a pretty vision of a cottage-home, green and shady and cool and flowery in summer, and cosy and warm and cheerful in winter. Such a gem of architecture, cheerful in winter. Such a gem of architecture, too! The prettiest of verandahs, all covered with clustering vines and sweet-perfumed flowers; the brightest little parlor; a very fairy's boudoir was my "castle in the air." Well, after such a long drive, we drew up in front of the cottage. Oh! not the home I had begun to love. Mirabile risu—what a place! Imagine three close, low little rooms, built as compactly as possible with the utmost possible. compactly as possible, with the utmost possible economy of space and material. Planks still rough and unpainted. No fence, neighborhood of similar houses. The proprietress, a fair daughter of Erin, left the dinner she was so daugner of Erih, left the fliner she was so assiduously preparing, to set forth the charms of this incomparable cottage. "The bed-room, was there ever such a beauty?" And she complacently moved the cradle, that we might pass to the dining-room and kitchen, both included in one. "So convenient, everything served from stove to table instanter. And the parlor ("ten by ten") the nicest and prettiest little room when completed (instanter) is the maintained, as far as practicable, avoiding, also, all abrupt angles and short turns. THE HARVEST FOR 1855.-We copy elsewhere from the United States Economist of Sat-urday, an interesting article on the wheat crops and the prospect of exports of wheat and flour during the present and coming year. The writer thinks that the crop of wheat, should it reach 140,317,000 bushels, as the estimates, is not more than sufficient to meet the home consumption and the export demand during the year ending the 30th June, 1856; and that there is little prospect of any abatement in prices. The ruling high prices will, however, check and limit hoth the demand for export and that for con-

Whether this he so or not, depends altoge her on the result of the harvest in Europe, which is yet a matter of uncertainty. Should that har-vest be large generally the demand for export will be very limited from the effects of high will be very limited from the effects of high prices, while a fall in prices would enable us better to compete with the continent of Europe in supplying the English market. The last advices from England indicated an approaching fall in grain from the improved state of the harvest weather; though the ripening of the crop had been retarded hy the fall of heavy rains.

The writer in the Economist's estimate of an export of thirty millions bushels of wheat in the current fiscal year seems to us very extrava-the current fiscal year seems to us to year.

The year 1854, when we exported twenty-seven million bushels, was, it is no be recollect ed, in consequence of a failure in the crops throughout Europe—in England, France, and Germany especially. No one pretends that there is likely to be any such general failure this season, and consequently the demand for flour and wheat from this country is not likely to be so great.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

NEW YORK. Aug. 22.

Twelve Tartarian sheep arrived at Newtown, New Jersey, on Wednesday, by the Sussex railroad. Ten of them belong to Mr. Job J. Shaw, of Gratitude, and two of them to Judge Haines of Hamburg. They have very fine wool, and tails six or eight inches broad. They are thought to be well adapted to that nountainous locality. Mr. Shaw also received by the same arrival six Polish geese. They are shaped much like swans, having long necks and large bodies.

AGRICULTURAL DIVISION OF THE PATENT Office-Inefficiency of Silver-pointed Lightning Rods .- We clip the following from the Livingston County (New York) Republican, dated the 29th of June:

The house of Mr. Cushing, about a mile north of the village of Geneseo, was struck by lightning on Thursday, the 22d inst. What is singular in the case, the house was guarded by three silver-pointed lightning rods of the most approved construction, which, it seems, afforded no protection.

In looking over the printed sheets of the next agricultural report of the Patent Office we find the following remarks on the subject:

The most important things to be considered in the choice of lightning rods are that they should consist of good conducting materials, good capacity, and should have a good connexion with moisture in the earth. In addition to these, the area of their protecting influence should be regarded; the number of rods required for each building; their position in special cases, and the modes of arranging them.

With regard to the conducting materials employed in their construction, metal is undoubtedly the best, and the rhoice would seem to lie between copper and iron. M. Pouillet makes the conducting power of copper from 5½ to 6½ times that of iron. Dr. Priestly makes it 5 times as much; and Professor Faraday 62-5 times as much; so that, after having determined the sectional area of an efficient copper rod, an iron one of about six times that area will possess the same conducting power. Iron, however, will not make durable and efficient conductors unless they are entirely coated with silver, copper, tin, palladium, or gold, in consequence of their liability to rust, or oxidate, by the action of the weather.

As to the capacity to be given to 2 rod, it has been decided by common consent that the sectional area of one composed of copper should vary from a circle one-half of an inch to three-fourths of an inch in diameter, the larger area being for very tail conductors, and the for shorter ones. And now, in respect to the cottage life and exhilarated by the evening air and rapid walking, we thought so too. Very kindly, with the most disinterested politeness imaginable, our agent offered horse and buggy that we should drive to this terrestrial paradise. Near presenting a single point to the clouds, with the presenting a single point to the clouds, with the apex tipped with palladium, the most powerful of all conductors of electricity known, being about nine times stronger than that of iron.

Of all considerations, the most important is a good connexion with the earth, which is so very essential that without this all other precautions will be in vain. It is not enough that the conductor enter the earth, for it must penetrate it to some depth-in fact, till it reaches the sub-soil, where it is well impregnated with water. In order to reduce the destructive action of this moisture (the oxidation of the metal), and at the same time to give the huried portion of the conductor every facility for dissipating its charge, it is better that the rod should terminate by several branches in a sunken bed of wellburnt charcoal, wood ashes, or spent tan bark.

Another important point to he considered is the situation and position in which the rods are to be placed after they are put up. In all cases they should be elevated above every other point of attraction, at least four times the diameter of the area to be protected; say, in a common-sized house, from ten to fifteen feet above the top of the highest chimney, or other object extending house, barn, church, factory, &c., be located in the immediate neighborhood of each other, and only one of them be protected, the danger of all the others will thereby be increased. edy, in such a case, is so obvious that nothing is

The question now presents itself: But, while our lot is cast in such a pleasant, the rods to be affixed to the huilding-by conplace, we can scarce wish for change. The ducting or by insulating staples? The unequiv-beautiful court-house opposite, with its smooth ocal reply would be, by conducting staples, not those covered with copal varnish, or insulated by necks of glass bottles, as has often teen beautiful carriages, drawn by proud horses recommended by writers on this subject; for let rolling by—the view from my window is as it be remembered that the flash, which may have forced itself through many yards of air There are some would find no difficulty in passing so slight is pleasant to be obstacles as these, if such a direction formed a part of the lightning's path previously prepared, or "felt out." It is a well-established truth, that, if a conductor pass near a mass of metal in tolerable connection with the earth, the flash will sometimes divide itself between the two channels, one portion of it continuing its course down the rod, and the other portion leaving it to pursue the side path. Therefore, in order to alleviate this "lateral discharge," or deviation from the main channel, all suspected vicinal electrified bodies should be united to the conductor itself, by means of metallic wires or bands. Then, if the building is predisposed, by the antecedent inductive action, to share with the rod in conveying away the fluid, let it be done in good sootb, without an explosion, without a fracas, as the French emphatically call it. Conductors should neither be painted nor varnished, as that would dimmish their conducting power. If made of iron, they should be coated with metal, as before suggested, and may be erected at either or both sides or ends of a building, at a distance of ahout four inches from the walls, supported by iron staples or wooden BOMBARDMENT IN UTICA —We are pleased to be able to announce that Prof. Anderson is now making arrangements for public experiments in this vicinity of his newly discovered explosive inflaming ball. It is his design to erect a citadel of some hundred feet front, which he will fire upon and inflame. The burning of a plank, covered with a wet sail, at a considerable distance from the gun, is also on his list of experiments, as is the explosion of a powder azine buried in the earth.

The invention of Prof. Anderson, if it is of practical value, bids fair to be of the greatest importance. He uses a conical hall, not unlike the ball of the Minie rifle, with the heavy end

BRAINARD BROTHERS, Jacoh's Block, 74 Fourth street, near Main.

The Parlor Grand is the very perfection of all Grand Pianos, and is particularly adapted to the wants of professors, smateurs, and others who may object to the great size of a Full Grand.

The nnique and beautiful style of this instrument and it Grand.
The nnique and beautiful style of this instrument and its perfect fitness for the parier are commendations that will not apply to the ordinary Grand Piano. For, while it combines the tone, power, action, and appearance of a Full Grand, it has the delicate touch of thickerling, 's Square Pianos, acknowledged by every one superior to any other, and, though of seven contact compass, is still smaller us like than the semi-Grand Piano of 6% octaves, as it occupies but little more space than a 7 octave Synare Piano.

The pseuliar and compact construction of the Parlor Grand, an invention of the late lamented Jonas Chickering, is a sure guarantee of its durability. And the complete success of this new and truly beautiful instrument fully sustains the reputation of Its inventor and manufacturers.

We have already sold several of these instruments in this city, and, to meet the lacreased demand for them, have arranged for a constant-supply.

To these superb Piano-Fortes we invite the attention of the public. Those in want of a Grand Piano-should examine the Parler Grand before purchasing. They are made only by Chickering & Sons, and can be had only of ourselves in this city.

The Edgartown Gazette, Aug. 17, says: The smack S. & J. Dickson, of New London, arrived here on Wednesday evening, having in tow a large fish, known as the "Killer," captured at the south side of our island. The fish derives its name from the fact that it often takes the life of a whale, by getting upon its back and stopping its spout holes. After it kills a whale, it consumes its tongue, and then abaudons it. These fish have been known to take a whale from a boat's company, after it had been killed, by dragging it under water. At such a time, a regular fight ensues between the harpooners and the killers. The killer, which is but seldom seen in our waters, is a very hardsome fish, of the whale species, of most beautiful proportions. Its skin is of a deep black and white color, as finely polished as the best patent leather, and its pure vory teeth contrast finely with the black surroundings. The fish in question will make some two barrels of oil, of a quality nearly equal to sperm. It has already been "cut in," and placed in the "try pots."
